

System's called Capitalism.

It's economic, not connected with our political or moral life, really.

No virtues that way. We could easily exist under Socialism or something else.

Western Europe seems to prosper under a more mixed system, medical care far superior, and a right.

So don't hand me sacrosanct horseshit, anymore. Capitalism is kind to many, brutal to more. My cure, though, is to let it fly! Complete laissez faire. Belay hypocrisy!

It should be interested in only the bottom line. No gestures towards little league or charity golf tournaments or anything to do with public good.

To counter the inevitable antisocial and rapacious, we need a strong government regulation, overseen by professionals, not legislators who are bribed so regularly it constitutes the bitterest joke we have.

If this latest reform fails, then let's try Socialism. Oh I know that the party leaders 'll place their kids in the top schools and perform as corruptly as Capitalists, but...we're talking about the country's despair.

Such professionals would not be allowed to vote, their work regularly checked.
